Saint Mary's University
Faculty of Education

Posting Date: June 12, 2015

The Faculty of Education is seeking an instructor to teach the following three-credit-hour course in the Fall semester of the 2015-2016 academic year:

EDUC 1000.1B – Introduction to University Education

Tuesdays/Thursdays 11:30 am – 12:45 pm

The main objective of this course is to provide first-year students with an academic roadmap for university. Through self-evaluation, discussions, field experiences, and traditional classroom exercises, students will develop an understanding of the culture of the university so that they will be in a position to participate productively and effectively in their chosen field of study. The course normally attracts significant numbers of international students, and therefore it involves teaching strategies that will help students develop academic knowledge about English and advanced proficiency in the English language. The course serves as a practicum site for students in the M.Ed/TESL program, and therefore involves collaboration between the instructor and Masters students studying in the Faculty of Education.

Candidates must have a Ph.D. degree in Education and/or Philosophy with a track record of success teaching first-year students in an active learning format. The course includes discussion of critical thinking and the Socratic method in teaching, and therefore philosophical expertise related to Education is necessary. Additionally, experience teaching students whose first language is not English, as well as experience with practicum supervision of student teachers are required.

Applicants are invited in the first instance from part-time faculty colleagues who are on the precedence list. The closing date is June 26, 2015.
