Position Title	Part-Time Academic NURS 5740.03: Advanced Health Assessment for Registered Nurse Prescribing – Winter 2025
Posting Number	PTAP2728P
Department/Unit	Nursing
Location	Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada
Job Summary & Key Responsibilities	NURS 5740.03: Advanced Health Assessment for Registered Nurse Prescribing – Winter 2025 This 3-credit course prepares RN Prescribing Graduate Certificate students to perform advanced health assessments of young, middle-aged, and elderly adults who are healthy, as well as those who are experiencing illness. It will focus on the knowledge, skills, and processes required for advanced health assessment. Students will develop competence in completing focused and comprehensive health assessments including history taking, physical examination, synthesis, critical analysis, diagnostic reasoning, clinical judgement, and interpretation of health data. Students will further develop their understanding of the pathophysiological basis of clinical findings and will integrate an increasing knowledge of pathophysiology and pharmacology as a basis for formulating a plan of care. Elements of an advanced health assessment include physical and mental health, psychosocial, family, cultural, and community factors, the determinants of health, and risk appraisal as they relate to a client's health status. Clinical, theoretical, and scientific knowledge will be synthesized in the identification and management of existing and potential states of health and illness. Approaches to effective written and verbal communication of advanced health assessments to lay and health professional colleagues will be addressed. It is

Position Title	Part-Time Academic: NURS 5200.03 – Health Care System Policy (Summer 2023)
Posting Number	PTAP1809P
Location	Halifax, Nova Scotia, Canada

Health policy can be defined as “a set of interrelated decisions, taken by authorities, concerning the selection of goals and the means of achieving them” (as defined in A Code of Good Practice on Policy Dialogue). This seminar course examines critical issues and trends affecting health policy in addition to the management practices of healthcare delivery services in Canada. Students engage in analytical debate while drawing on the assigned readings, other research, and their own clinical experience. Discussions incorporate historical and global perspectives as well as a range of influencing factors to understand, test, challenge, and contrast the effectiveness of current health policy in relation to the healthcare system in Canada.

Job Summary & Key Responsibilities	This 3-credit course prepares students to perform advanced health assessments of young, middle-aged, and elderly adults who are healthy, as well as those who are experiencing illness. It will focus on the knowledge, skills, and processes required for advanced health assessment. Students will develop competence in completing focused and comprehensive health assessments including history taking, physical examination, synthesis, critical analysis, diagnostic reasoning, clinical judgement, and interpretation of health data. Students will further develop their understanding of the pathophysiological basis of clinical findings and will integrate an increasing knowledge of pathophysiology and pharmacology as a basis for formulating a plan of care. Elements of an advanced health assessment include physical and mental health, psychosocial, family, cultural, and community factors, the determinants of health, and risk appraisal as they relate to a client's health status. Clinical, theoretical, and scientific knowledge will be synthesized in the identification and management of existing and potential states of health and illness. Approaches to effective written and verbal communication of advanced health assessments to lay and health professional colleagues will be addressed. It is expected that students will be competent in basic health assessment techniques prior to beginning the course. All students will develop an Individual Learning Plan [ILP] to guide their learning experience.

CUPE 3912 recognizes the traditional treaty territory of Mi'kma'ki. We honour the Indigenous peoples whose territory we reside on, and who have been living on and caring for these lands. We acknowledge the painful history that has brought us to reside on the land, and seek to understand our place within that history as partners and allies of all Indigenous people. Many CUPE 3912 members are beneficiaries of ongoing colonialism in our relationships, systems, and institutions. We all have been privileged to build a life here in Mi'kma'ki, the ancestral and unceded land of the Mi'kmaw People.
